

Privacy Policy

By using this web site you give your consent that all personal data submitted by you may be processed by us for the purposes set out in the following privacy policy;

We comply with the Data Protection Act 1998. To access the principles set out in the current Data Protection legislation, visit the DPA web site:

http://www.ico.gov.uk/what_we_cover/data_protection.aspx

We take care to protect the privacy of our clients and will do the same for users of this web site. If you are, or if you become a client of one of our members, we may use information about you in additional ways. Full details can be obtained by emailing us at enquiries@ukqaa.org.uk.

We automatically collect some information when you visit the site because your IP address needs to be recognised by the server. We may use this information to analyse how different parts of our site are used. We will only collect and retain personal data to the extent that it is strictly necessary for our purposes.

We will not disclose to any third party any personal data which we collect about you when you visit this site

Upon receipt of your written request, we will disclose to you your personal data held by us, we shall correct or delete inaccurate details, and notify any third party recipients of the necessary changes. We regularly delete data which is no longer required. We do not currently transfer any data collected on our web site out of the European Economic Area. However, the Internet is made up of a large variety of international connections and if you are visiting this web site from outside the European Economic Area the various communications will necessarily result in the transfer of information across international boundaries.

By visiting this web site and communicating electronically with us you consent to these transfers.

This policy forms part of our web site Terms of Use and as such shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of England and Wales. You agree to submit any dispute arising out of your use of this web site to the exclusive jurisdiction of the courts of England and Wales.

Please note we do NOT place cookies on your computer